Don't Risk Pneumonia By Neglecting a Cold

If you have a cough or cold, don't neglect it during this pneumonia weather. A cough or cold weakens your resistance. If you let it "go down" into your chest it always causes congestion in your bronchial tubes—and these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. Real Medicine, reaching deep with its healing power, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

With the very first swallow of Cherry Pectoral you feel its comforting warmth. The soothing, healing powers of this hospital-tested medicine are absorbed by the linings of throat, chest and bronchial tubes, just as ink is absorbed by a blotter. This is why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral so quickly stops the cough, drives out the cold and brings sure, lasting relief.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is used by doctors and hospital clinics—for children and grown people. Even sick children love its flavor. At all drug-gists, 60c; twice as much, $1.00.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who had his hair trimmed only once a month?

Undertaker. One who undertakes to take what's left of the estate after the operation.

The district school inspector wrote upon the blackboard, "LVXX." Then peering over his spectacles at a good looking girl in the front row, he said, "I'd like you to tell me what that means?"

"Love and kisses," the girl replied.

"Good grief, man, but that suits big for you."

"That's all right, I come from Poughkeepsie."

"What d'ya mean?"

"I'm a bigger man there than I am here."

'All for One' When Miners Face Death

Mining Communities in Dread of Underground Disaster But Never Show Hysteria—Calm Heroism in Time of Stress.

Francisco, Ind., Jan. 6 (AP).—The code of the coal field in many ways is the motto of Dumas' "Three Musketeers,"—"all for one."

When death rides through the ranks of the miners, striking them down in the labyrinthian underground which is their workshop, the call for assistance first finds response among those who live by the same labor.

Never Show Hysteria.

Mining communities always are in dread of underground disaster but it seldom is evidence in hysteria. It is this brotherhood of fearful expectancy that supplies more than enough volunteers when a dangerous relief mission is at hand. Relief workers today, tomorrow they may be entombed awaiting aid from above.

The readiness of miners to drop into gaseous and flame-swept chambers to aid their fellows is reflected in the calm assurance with which entombed men await relief. Charles Cooper, 61, the oldest man, penned up in a mine explosion here, phrased it thus: "We know they'll get us if the after damp or fire didn't." He was one of the last men taken from the mine.

Volunteer For Danger.

An indication of the calm heroism of miners in time of stress is recorded in the events of the night following the Francisco explosion. Near midnight, after relief workers had been withdrawn from the mine, with five bodies still below, state and federal inspectors and searchers determined to definitely establish if there was fire of proportions in the mine. The hazards of the task were written on the drawn and serious faces of the group of men bending over a blue print of the mine's interior.

The smell of fire had grown stronger as the afternoon waned and those who had entered the mine at night were almost overcome by smoke. Further explosions were feared.

When, however, volunteers were called for several times as many men responded as could be used. Virtually all of them had been working at the mine since shortly after the explosion.

WEST PARK.

West Park, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Richard C. Searing is under the care of Dr. G. W. Ross due to a fall she received on Friday morning. Mrs. Searing was seriously injured by the fall, fracturing her ribs and sustaining several bruises.

Webster Jones returned to Cornell University after spending the holiday vacation with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Quinn.

Several people from Kingston attended the midnight services held in Ascension Church. The ceremony was well attended by the congregation.

About thirty persons attended the watch party given on New Year's eve by the Misses Mae and Anna Overacker. Delicious refreshments were served and all had a delightful time ushering in the new year.

Miss Hilda Smith of New York and Miss Friedman of Rockford, Ill., spent several days of the past week at Heartsease.

Miss Helen Schafer of New York spent New Year's day at Aberdeen.

Whitfield, Jan. 6.—Miss and Mrs. Jerome Enderly, daughter Verna, and son James, spent New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse B. Quick.

Mrs. Joseph Avery called on her sister, Mrs. Joseph Hornbeck.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Lyons, Alton Hornbeck and Miss Evelyn Osterhout attended the masquerade and dance at Winchell Saturday night.

L. Gillespie, who has been seriously ill, has improved.

Those who have recently installed radios are S. P. Hornbeck, E. K. Van Vleet, and Joseph Hornbeck.

Miss Verna Enderly has returned to Ithaca after spending her Christmas vacation with her parents.

Builders Form an Organization

General Contractors' Association of Kingston formed at meeting held at the Mayvorne Hotel. Purpose of organization is to represent the interests of the building trade in the city and to act in conjunction with other organizations now existing or to be formed, adopting such means for the protection of members as shall be deemed for the best interest of both public and the builders; to arbitrate all differences and in all local ways to advance the interests of the members. There is no intention on the part of the association to in any way restrict competition in the building field.

The following contractors were present and became charter members of the new association: Clarence A. Aken, E. Otis Van Aken, Frank Campbell, C. H. Hoffman & Son, E. Joyce Company, Inc., W. W. Kingston Company, and Charles J. Schaud Company, Inc.

The officers elected were: President, Frank S. Campbell; vice president, Charles J. Schaud; secretary, treasurer, W. E. Joyce.

The organization adopted a constitution which also set forth the object of which the organization was formed. Briefly the association is organized to promote and protect the interests of the building business in general and in conjunction with other organizations now existing or to be formed, adopting such means for the protection of members as shall be deemed for the best interest of both public and the builders; to arbitrate all differences and in all local ways to advance the interests of the members. There is no intention on the part of the association to in any way restrict competition in the building field.

130 Swimmers In Wrigley Swim

Los Angeles, Jan. 4 (AP).—One hundred and thirty swimmers, representatives of 13 states and Canada, have entered for William Wrigley's $40,000 marathon channel swim, at the end of which lies a "pot of gold" and glory for the first to actually swim the icy and turbulent passage lying between Santa Catalina Island and the California mainland.

This was revealed in the official entry list which closed at midnight and was announced by officials in charge of the forthcoming event. The swim is set for January 15.

Fifteen of the entrants are women.

The entries from New York state are: Carlton W. Adler, Buffalo; Clara-belle Barrett, New Rochelle; Robert R. Childs, Buffalo; Edward F. Har-rington, Jr., New York city; Miss Ethel Hertle, Bronx; Miss Pauline Jackson, New York city; Miss Ellen Ray, New York city; Mrs. Charlotte Schoenmel, Howard Beach, Long Island; W. M. Williamson, West-bergh; Alfred Behrfield, New York; E. L. Kenner, New York.

Jewish Religious Service Deferred

The Jewish services which were to be held at the Abramowitz residence under the auspices of Rabbi Clark have been indefinitely postponed on account of the illness of Rabbi Clark who is now at the Kingston City Hospital. The service originally planned for Bethany chapel was changed to the Abramowitz residence, 195 Albany avenue, in order to provide more room for the attendance which was expected to greet Cantor Schlossberg of New York city.

Straight Coat Is Popular in Paris

Variety Is Supplied by Use of Faux, Patch Decora-tion, Stitching.

The straight-line coat, given variety by contrasting inset pieces, by patch stitching, by patch decoration of the and other novel ways of trimming, is generally accepted as the foundation of the Paris mode in new coats, says a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Other patterns are shown, of course. The blouse-back model is very chic; the coat with fitted waist and full skirt is shown frequently; even the cape coat has its devotees among the couturiers. But the straight coat, with perhaps a barely perceptible flare, is the one most in favor.

For one thing, a straight-line coat affords an admirable surface for applying an infinite number of different trimming ideas, as the French designers have not been slow to recognize. "Patchwork," consisting of inset patterns as patiently and tediously pieced together as was ever the patch-work of our grandmothers, is a favorite method of enhancing the beauty of these new garments. Paton has employed it on a bottle-green coat in the new zibikasha, boasting one of the popular and graceful, full-length tuxedo collars that seem destined for a great vogue this season. This roll collar is of beaver, though the coat itself was lined in chipmunk. Linings of short-haired furs are being called upon to supply the necessary warmth that give fur coats their vogue. The patchwork on this coat consists of a border of rather large, diamond-shaped insets of velvet in a deep-grape-purple shade, set in on the lower skirt and on the sleeves above the beaver cuffs.

Applied strappings afford many original trimming arrangements on these straight-line coats. Jeanne Lanvin has completely covered the shoulders of a straight coat in beige kasha with one-inch strappings of kasha in a darker shade. These straps run from the shoulders, two-thirds the coat length, where they terminate squarely, but are so gauged in length that they form a V on both the back and front of the coat. The full-length tuxedo collar serves on this coat also, this time being made of light brown astrakhan.

Another coat in dress of wine kasha, cut more characteristically of the Lanvin collection, savors of the Russian influence that she is enthusiastic about just now. This coat had a huge draped Russian collar of place leather matching as nearly as possible the color of the coat. A row of large buttons fastens the coat neatly from hem to neck on the left side, and one of Lanvin's amusing round, accordion pouch pockets, nearly twelve inches across, focuses attention on the right side of the coat. The flaring cuffs and the trimming on the pocket are of leather.

Sometimes the lining of the coat is merely the go-between utilizing two entirely dissimilar fabrics as it does in an ensemble.

Stakes Are Smart

Nothing is smarter for moderate weather with a tailored suit than a long fur stole. Many of the smartest are made of two or even three fox pelts, but with only one head and tail mounted on them. Gray astrakhan is emphasized as a popular fur for winter and some cloth coats have the entire sleeves made of the gray fur reproduced in each of the accessories.

Tricolor Outfits

Three-color combinations in costumes are a feature of the vogue. While some are worked out in one tone, such as black, trimmed with three other colors, there are many other interesting devices for expressing the three-color fashion.

Too Early?

Of course, getting an education has its value, but one of the reasons why a boy should not drop out before covering high school is that it is too early an age for a boy to get the habit of quitting.—Fort Worth Record.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 6, 1927

TELEPHONE SERVICE

The third telephone line to cross the continent without relay will soon be put into operation between Seattle and New York. It has cost millions of dollars to build, but it had to be constructed to serve the public. Every line extension brings need for better equipment, more operators, more offices, but every extension multiplies the value of every phone. Widening telephone service is a national necessity, for business cannot be conducted today without it. The telephone may cost as much as it did 20 years ago. But it gives a thousand times the service. That makes the American telephone a bargain compared with phone service in any other country.

THE HOME YEAR.

The year 1926 has been prosperous and quiet. There has been work for all; good wages, good crops, good markets, good living, a surplus for pleasure and for investment. It has been an extraordinary year, for building and enjoying homes. Sometimes one forgets the greatest blessings, in the glamor of a great emotion, the fear of a great evil, the toll of a great emergency; just as in the rush of business one may temporarily forget the home. But home love outlasts the furious passion, bitter hate, fear and toil. It is still a benediction when other things bring only remorse and the memory of dead hopes, lost opportunities. Just so, the quiet home year 1926 will outlast the storm of war and of reconstruction hate that marks the trying period so lately past. It will go into history, and into the national consciousness, as a great Home Year.

"PARKED" PEDESTRIANS.

The authorities of Chicago have reached the conclusion that it is desirable to regulate parking by pedestrians as well as by motor cars. An ordinance is proposed to prevent pedestrians from "parking" themselves on the sidewalks and thus "obstructing traffic," or checking and diverting the endless tide of humanity on foot. It is regarded as possible to permit pedestrians to pause near the curb or close up to the walls of buildings, but it is believed to be imperative that they "keep moving" on the main section of the sidewalks. There is opposition to the proposal especially on the part of shopkeepers, who fear trade will be lost if pedestrians are not allowed to "park" as long as they like in front of show windows. Others object on the ground that there are too many rules and regulations already.

In the average town or small city all this may seem to be nonsensical, a waste of time on trifles by authorities who should give their attention to important matters. But it will not be regarded as nonsense by dwellers in our great centers of population who must often walk through their congested areas. To the pedestrian in a hurry the "parking" or indolently slow ambling of dense phalanges of human flesh in such areas is extremely exasperating, even appalling when there is a train to catch or, for other reasons, there is not a half-minute to lose.

TOMBS OF SEVEN SLEEPERS.

According to a Smyrna dispatch archeologists at work in Ephesus have just discovered "a vast compound of ancient Christian culture," the finds including the "tombs of the Seven Sleepers." According to Gibbon's account of the "memorable tale, seven noble Ephesian youths, persecuted by the Emperor Decius, took refuge in a cave, the opening of which was then sealed up with great stones by the tyrant's order. Thereupon the youths fell into deep slumber which was miraculously prolonged until the cave was accidentally opened and fresh air pushed in 197 years later.

The "youths" now more than two centuries old though they had slept only a few hours, for there was no change in their appearance, and, being very hungry, one of them ventured all forth to obtain bread of some overlying who changed and the stranger very much amazed. Then, as Gibbon relates, "the Bishop of Ephesus, the clergy, the magistrate, the people and, it is said, the Emperor Theodosius himself, hastened to visit the cavern of the Seven Sleepers who bestowed their benediction, related their story and at the same instant peacefully expired."

FOOD OR SUNLIGHT.

There is an argument going on at present as to which is the most important to the system, sunlight or the vitamin A as contained in animal fat.

Food exposed to sunlight increases the vitamin power and it has been suggested therefore that if one could get more sunlight they could do with less food, because the food they eat would be so much richer.

This is the unfortunate part of some of those scientific discoveries, that the early investigators are so enthusiastic about their findings that they do not weigh all factors in the case.

Of course, if men were not enthusiastic little would be discovered, but this very enthusiasm sometimes affects their judgment as to the merits of other findings.

A research man points out that infants born in the late summer have to go through the winter with heavy clothes, deprived of the sun's rays, and therefore should have cod liver oil as a part of their diet during this time. Light of certain wave length seems to produce the same effects as does cod liver oil.

On the other hand a Danish physician of high standing, after careful research work, tells us that exposure to the carbon arc light, or to sunlight, does not cure the eye ailment caused by deficiency in vitamin A, whereas foods rich in vitamin A will cure it.

Therefore, he states that light cannot replace vitamin A, or supply it to the body.

Now what about all this? That you and I would do well to remember that all classes of foods are essential to growth and for carrying on the various functions of the body.

That is the regulation fruit cereal with milk or cream, and toast or bread makes a good breakfast, unless you do hard physical work, when bacon and eggs are essential.

For lunch a salad, or soup with fruit and milk or other liquids. And for dinner the regulation meat with vegetables and some fruit or desert with fruit in it. Also liquids, of course.

I believe the above is about the usual menu for most of us.

Sublight is therefore really our need rather than food. Of course, youngsters need to be encouraged to eat more vegetables and fruits, otherwise their diet is about right.

Nature's Laws Work to Curb Population.

If the winter is a very severe one, thousands of birds perish. That seems regrettable, but there is another side to the picture.

If the bird family multiplied unchecked, the time would come when we should be unable to see the sun! In 20 years the descendants of one pair of birds would number thousands of millions. What, then, of the descendants of (to put it no higher) a hundred thousand pairs? The human race would perish in darkness. Nothing would grow but dank vegetation.

If, to take but one fish, every egg laid by a cod were hatched, and thus 2,000,000 young codlings started their lives, to breed in their turn, it would be but a few years before the seas were choked and became putrid, disease breeding masses of water. Plagues would sweep the human race out of existence.

If rat ceased to war on rat, and we relaxed our own attacks on the rat tribe, in less than ten years there would be 5,000 rats to every person, child and adult, in this country. If flies all lived their allotted span—well, we should all go mad, for from one female, in five seasons, there would be a family of descendants requiring a string of 37 figures to number them!

And if all human beings born lived until seventy, and 60 per cent married and had but two children who lived to be seventy, in 130 years the earth would be a packed mass of humanity, hardly able to move. That, apart from the food question, would bring disease and extinction.

Nature may seem cruel at times, but there is wisdom in the way she works. Unchecked addition would mean an end to everything.

TODAY'S STORY IN NEW YORK HISTORY

By
 Frederic A. Godcharles
 (Copyright, 1927, by the Author)

Albany, Oldest Town in State and Its Capital Since January 6, 1797.

After being for many years the occasional seat of the State Government of New York, Albany became the permanent capital on January 6, 1797. Albany, as an old frontier town and strategic post against the hostile Indians and the French settlements in the Eighteenth Century wars, is of much historic interest.

Next to Jamestown, Va., and St. Augustine, Fla., it was the oldest settlement in the Union; if the thirteen colonies only are included, and Jamestown thrown out as deserted since 1676, Albany may perhaps be properly called the oldest town in the United States with a continuous life.

About 1640 a French trading post was set up at the present site of Albany. Hendrick Hudson ascended the river which now bears his name as far as Albany in 1609. During the next several years Dutch traders commenced traffic with the Indians, and small trading houses were built at Manhattan and Albany. Subsequently these stations were fortified.

The Dutch named Albany Beverwyck (Beavertown), and afterward Willemstadt. In 1614 Captains Blok and Christiaens visited the place and built a block house on the island, which they named Castle Island, in allusion to its defense, having mounted there two brass cannons and eleven guns which used stone shot. These were in charge of a small garrison of a dozen Dutch soldiers.

This little fort was abandoned in 1617, after the spring freshet and ice swept the whole of it away. The next place chosen was a hill within two miles of the former site. The trading house built here was called "Lookout Hill" by the Indians. This was also soon abandoned, and the last place chosen was in the vicinity of Fort Orange Hotel, South Market Street. Here the Dutch built a fort in 1613, mounting eight cannons, and called it Fort Orange. Here was held a memorable treaty with the Indians, which the latter long remembered and often made reference to.

The first settlers were eighteen families of Huguenot refugees from Belgium, chiefly Walloons, who sailed, in the spring of 1613, from the Texel with Captain Cornelius Jacobus May.

In 1626 a war with the Mohawk forced a temporary abandonment of the village.

In 1629 the Dutch West India Company granted to Killian Van Rensselaer, one of the commissioners, a pearl merchant of Amsterdam, a charter conferring upon him privileges similar to those enjoyed by the feudal barons of Europe. His agents made large purchases of land lying on both sides the Hudson, near Albany, and he colonized it with Dutch settlers and rented the land to them as patroon.

This, as always, ended in a chronic dispute over the extent of his legal rights and jurisdiction, which was not settled till after the ownership of the Dutch settlements was transferred by the English conquest to the Duke of York and Albany (later James II.; after whom Fort Orange was renamed).

On July 22, 1686 Albany received a city charter, its first mayor being Peter Shuyler. The English settlers rapidly increased, but Albany long continued a Dutch city.

In the French and Indian Wars it was a stockaded rendezvous, arsenal, and hospital, the refuge of the frontier.

In 1754 it was the meeting place of the first Provincial Congress, which formed "a plan of a proposed union of the several colonies."

In 1777 Albany was General Burgoyne's objective point, where he was to meet the expeditions up the river from Canada.

Besides its political importance as the capital of the State, its commercial and manufacturing status is high. Its rapid growth began with the opening of the Erie Canal in 1826, making it the terminal for Western business. Within thirty-five years it had increased five fold.

With New York and the ocean it is connected by the Imperial Hudson, of which it is the head of navigation for large steamers, while smaller ones are able to reach Troy, six miles above.

Albany is a great railroad center and joins the western and northern traffic of the New York Central Railroad system and that of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad with the western traffic of New England.

The great show building of Albany is the magnificent capital, begun in 1871, and completed at a cost of twenty-million dollars.

Kidney Trouble Is—Many Troubles

The kidneys are the filters of the body. Normal, they secrete useful fluids and eliminate waste. Abnormal, they reverse the process, the circulatory system is flooded with poisons, and many troubles result.

Like all other organs, the kidney functions through its muscles, and these are directed in their activity by nerves. Correction of spinal irritation of a trunk nerve will usually bring the kidneys back to normal.

HEALTH FOLLOWS

 EYES, EARS, NOSE, THROAT, LUNGS, HEART, LIVER, STOMACH, PANCREAS, SPLEEN, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, BLADDER, GENITALS.

CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS SECURE RESULTS.
 "I have been troubled with my kidneys for the last twelve years. I was tired all the time, had severe backache, cough, stiff-neck, heartburn and constipation. Doctors could do nothing for me, but since taking adjustments I have been steadily improving and most of my troubles have entirely disappeared."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by Mary Graham Bonner

THE FAIRY QUEEN

"There was once," commenced Daddy, "a grand ball given on New Year's eve by all the elves and brownies."

"It was held in a beautiful park, which was lighted with Japanese lanterns, and there were a number of little flower hothouses in the corners of the park, where the elves and brownies could drink pink lemonade when they felt hot and thirsty from dancing."

"The elves were far prettier dancers than the brownies, for they were graceful and dainty, and the way they could twirl on their toes and spin around filled the brownies with envy."

"The brownies looked very cunning in their little brown suits and quaint brown hats, but they were much too fat to be good dancers."

"Often they would topple over in dancing, and how the elves would laugh and how mad it made the brownies feel!"

"Toward the latter part of the evening they forgot all envious feelings and joined together in doing square dances and Virginia reels."

"When they were almost ready to drop from dancing so much and playing so hard they decided it was about time to stop."

"So they all sat down on the grass for the most marvelous supper you can ever possibly imagine."

"First they had broiled gilly tongues on toast (a fairy dish), then some fried ferns with mushroom sauce, delicious grass salad, and for dessert pink ice cream to match the pink lemonade, for they voted on pink as their favorite color."

"Of course they had nuts and raisins and bonbons of all colors to pull with each other."

"In the bonbons were all sorts of little toys, whistles, paper caps and noisettes, wooden soldiers and toy animals."

"Suddenly a most beautiful fairy appeared, dressed all in white, with a silver crown on her head, a silver wand and silver stars glittering on her dress."

"The Queen of the Fairies," said they all breathlessly.

"And at this moment at a far distance were heard the sounds of bells ringing in a new year."

"Happy New Year to all the elves and brownies," said the Queen.

"Happy New Year, beautiful fairy," said all in reply.

"The Fairy Queen waved her wand and in the loveliest, most musical voice said:

"I wish you all good luck!"

"Then she vanished, and in the lap of each little elf and brownie lay a glittering round goldpiece with 'Good luck from the Fairy Queen' engraved upon it."

"Never had the elves and brownies had such a marvelous surprise, and such a fine visit from the Fairy Queen—to have actually had her visit them on New Year's eve—oh, it was wonderful!"

"And they knew how lucky they were, for if the Fairy Queen wished them good luck it would be sure to follow them all their lives."

"For the Fairy Queen knew how to make wishes come true."

"And you may be sure all the little elves and brownies were the happiest creatures in existence as they crawled into their flower beds very, very early that New Year's morning."

RIDDLES

What has neither an end nor a beginning? A ring.

What vegetable does not capitulate on his ship? A leek.

Why are four ears like jazz bands? Because they both have drums.

Why did Noah object to the letter D? Because it made the ark dark.

What is that which is full of knowledge and yet knows nothing? A book.

If Mississippi gave Missouri a New Jersey, what would Delaware be? Alaska (I'll ask her).

What is the difference between a boy's head and a camera? One is made to take pictures and the other is made to take photos.

The Marlborough Presbyterian Church Social Club held its entertainment on Wednesday night instead of Tuesday because of the inclement weather. Twenty-eight of the members gathered at the home of Niel Eckerson and enjoyed a delightful evening's entertainment. All imagined that they were inhabitants of an old English town of the twelfth century, gathered in one of the famous old taverns as described by Washington Irving and other eminent writers of stories that had their setting in England. All the characters that made up the personnel of the old inn were present; there were travelers, wandering friars, story tellers, stagers and the best of all, a night's looking at the Black Knight, Inn. The tavern maids served cider and crullers which represented the brown ale and roast beef that made up the meals in the old English taverns. Mr. and Mrs. Eckerson acted as the owners of the inn; Messrs. Cavell and Wyant were the friars; Townsend Velle was the wandering minstrel with his fiddle; Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Velle were carol singers; William Pank was the crusader knight with sword, dagger and falcon; Mrs. Cavell was the Scottish queen who also ridged the inn married in her royal robes and wearing her crown. She told a thrilling tale that led the audience breathless. Mrs. Pank, a member of the program committee, told a Christmas story from medieval France. Mrs. Calvin Wyant, Jr., Mrs. Clarence Potter and Mrs. Frank Johnson were the "serving maids". The next session of the club will be held in the church on the evening of Tuesday, January 25. Mr. Wischoff, well-known Newburgh attorney, will be the speaker.

Jewish Farmerettes In Palestine Find Thrill In Cultivating The Holy Soil

THE woman with the hoe presents one of the most arresting pictures in the rebuilding of the Jewish Homeland that is now taking place in Palestine. The problem of "how to keep the women-folk on the farm" is no problem at all in the classic land of Ruth and Deborah.

Everywhere hundreds of young women may be found planting wheat, tending orange groves, caring for poultry, wielding the hoe, even helping the men lay roads—nothing is too hard for these young women who are filled with enthusiasm for rebuilding Judea on its old home ground.

The young women are not only helping turn Palestine into a real land of milk and honey, as Scripture described it, but the hard work is transforming them physically. Coming from the ghettos of Europe, often frail and anemic, they soon blossom out into healthy, athletic lassies, full of vigor and self-confidence.

Before they go out on the farms, the young women are sent to farm training camps, where they are made acquainted with agricultural fundamentals. There are about half a dozen of these women's training camps in Palestine. There is also a very excellent modern agricultural school in the Valley of Esdraelon, famous for its Biblical associations, where those desiring a more specialized knowledge of agriculture are trained.

Their work on the farms has made them healthy and robust, but these daughters of Eve still retain their femininity. Hard working and womanly, they are a true embodiment of the virtuous woman, described in the Bible in the following glowing words:

"Far above pearls is her value. She seeketh for wool and flax, and worketh with her willing hands. She riseth while yet it is night, and giveth provision to her household and a task for her maidens. With the fruit of her hands, she planteth a vineyard."

"She girdeth with strength her loins, and giveth vigor to her arms. She stretcheth out her hands to the spindle, and her palms hold fast on the distaff."

"Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all."

The girl pioneers of Palestine are not of course left unassisted, most of the support coming from the large Jewish community of this country, through the United Palestine Appeal.

Proof of Progress

The breaking of records is a step toward the progress and development of men, and is an indication that human capability expands. The holders of records are the bearers of a banner showing that men progress and develop.—Tokyo Asahi.

Killing Made Costly

Among the Eskimos it is an unwritten law that if any man, from any cause whatsoever, slays his neighbor, the wife and family of the deceased must be cared for by the slayer during the rest of their lives.

A Raw, Sore Throat

goes quickly when you apply a little Musterole. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain and won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. Brings quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuritis, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lambo, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore nipples, bruises, chafings, frost-bite, cuts on the chest.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jar & Tube.

Abandon Small Trolley Lines

Motor Has Replacing Railway Lines in Small Sections—In Most Cases Buses Are Used on Least Busy Routes.

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Small railway lines throughout the northeast are being abandoned and the honk of the motor bus horn is superseding the clang of the trolley bell in many sections.

Where the two have challenged each other for supremacy as public transportation means, frequently the two have combined.

A survey completed by The Associated Press today shows abandonment of trolley lines has been particularly noticeable in the less populous sections.

But in the larger cities, the street railway systems, while here and there losing money, are still the most generally patronized means of transportation.

Bus lines have become formidable competitors of street railways throughout New England in the last few years, but in most cases, the trolley lines have met the situation by operating buses themselves on their least busy routes.

Pleasure Cars the Cause.

Trolley line officials there ascribe dwindling street car patronage to individually owned passenger automobiles. They say their profits recently have been meagre.

Individually owned automobiles in the big cities, like New York and Philadelphia, however, in the opinion of Lucia S. Storrs, managing director of the American Electric Railway Association, eventually will help rather than hinder street cars.

"Street congestion, caused by the increase in the number of pleasure cars," said Mr. Storrs, "is rapidly driving people back to use electric line service. Prospects for the future of the electric rail lines manned by progressive managements in communities where service is warranted never were better."

New Jersey reports the Public Service Railway Company operates 1,500 street cars and the Public Service Transportation Company, a sister organization, operates more than 800 motor buses in 165 New Jersey municipalities ranging from Newark, with nearly half a million inhabitants, to communities of a few thousand.

Coordination Inevitable.

Six years ago, says R. H. Horton, of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, only sixteen electric railway companies in the United States were operating motor buses. In 1925, railway companies to the number of 280 were using them. He believes the deduction to draw is the coordination, rather than competition, is inevitable.

In Philadelphia there are now subways, elevators, street car lines, motor buses and auxiliary taxicabs. "All of these," Mr. Horton asserts, "should be properly coordinated with a view to placing at the service of the community that type of transportation which is best suited for the occasion."

In New York city buses are used mainly for short hauls, and are here and there operated for emergency service, pending franchise grants, by the city. Fifth avenue is the scene of the most auspicious service, a ten cent fare bus handling nearly 70,000,000 fares annually but only one fourth as many as are handled on the Third avenue elevated lines.

Update New York and western sections are finding the buses more convenient than New Yorkers have found them. Buffalo through its International Railway Company, reported an operating loss of $200,000 last year on all its lines.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

There will be a complete change of program at Reade's Kingston Theatre tonight. The picture will be "The Show-Off," the story of a fellow who is so apt at misrepresentation that he makes the town think he owns a railroad when he is but a shipping clerk. There will be an excellent vaudeville bill of singing, dancing and comedy.

The Auditorium Theatre will present Colleen Moore in "Twinkle-toes," one of her best pictures.

The Orpheum Theatre will show double features, "Not So Long Ago," with Betty Bronson and Richard Cortez, and "The Fighting Book," starring Bob Custer. Tonight will also be gift night.

Just Came for Murder

What's the use?

An Indianapolis woman recently made a trip to her old home town, where she had not visited for at least 20 years. In preparation for her homecoming she bought a lot of new clothes, among them an expensive hat, of which she was very proud.

So laughing her surprise when, on the very first day of her visit, she met an old acquaintance, a man, of course, who greeted her with this remark, "I knew right away it was you; I remembered that old hat you used to wear."

Students Photographed

New students are photographed upon registration at Pennsylvania State college, says the United States bureau of education. Under the plan inaugurated this year five prints will be made. One of these will be attached for identification to the student's records in the office of the registrar; others are for use of the college physicians, the dean of men or of women, the dean, and the head of the department in which the student is enrolled.
